

E-NEWSLETTER FOR JULY 2026 OF BRAHMAPUR BRANCH OF EICASA (ICAI)

Editorial

Dear Students,

At the outset, we congratulate you on your success in the May Term Examination. We also appreciate the efforts of those who gave their best but could not achieve the desired result this time.

The CA examination is a journey that demands perseverance, resilience and hard work in the right direction. Remember, relentless pursuit, when coupled with the right strategy and consistent effort, will surely yield results.

We assure you that Brahmapur Branch of EICASA is always there to support, guide and assist you in your journey towards becoming skilled and confident professionals.

The AURA Workshop – Season 2 was one such initiative in this direction and witnessed enthusiastic participation from students. We look forward to bringing many more such learning initiatives and engaging activities in the future.

Happy Learning!

Regards,
Editorial Team

When Results Are Ahead the Mindset That Defines You

Mandapaka Yamini Kameswari | SR00572329

As the result season approaches, there is a silent shift in the atmosphere.

Conversations become shorter. Sleep becomes lighter. Thoughts become heavier. For CA students, results are not just numbers on a screen—they feel like a verdict on months (sometimes years) of sacrifice, discipline, and perseverance. But here's the truth: results reveal performance, not potential.

1. Understand What Results Really Mean

In a demanding course like Chartered Accountancy, results are milestones not final destinations. Whether you clear both groups, one group, or face a setback, the result only reflects your performance in a particular attempt under specific circumstances.

It does not measure:

Your intelligence

Your capability

Your long-term success

Your worth as a future professional

Many successful CAs today have faced failures before earning the prefix "CA." What made the difference was not a perfect academic record - it was resilience.

2. If You Pass-Stay Grounded

Success is a beautiful feeling. It validates your hard work and boosts confidence. Celebrate it. You deserve it.

But remember

This is a step forward, not the final summit.

Stay humble and hungry.

Reflect on what worked your strategy, discipline, revision pattern and carry it forward.

Momentum matters. Let success strengthen your discipline, not dilute it.

3. If You Don't Pass-Stay Steady

Failure in CA is common. Quitting is not.

It is natural to feel disappointed. Allow yourself a day or two to process emotions. But do not attach your identity to one result. One unsuccessful attempt does not erase your efforts.

Instead:

Analyze objectively: Was it conceptual clarity? Presentation? Time management?

Seek guidance from mentors.

Refine your strategy rather than questioning your capability.

Remember, setbacks are setups for stronger comebacks.

4. Detach Effort from Outcome

As future professionals, one of the greatest lessons CA teaches us is emotional discipline. You control preparation-not evaluation. You control effort - not marking.

Adopt this mindset:

"I am responsible for my preparation. The result is a consequence, not a definition."

This shift reduces anxiety and increases productivity for the next step.

5. Protect Your Mental Well-Being

Result anxiety can be overwhelming. Some practical suggestions:

Avoid constant speculation and social media comparison.\

Do not calculate expected marks repeatedly.

Engage in physical activity.

Stay connected with supportive people.

Comparison steals peace. Every CA journey is different different timelines, different struggles, different victories. Your growth

Your professional character

The CA journey is not only about passing exams discipline, and emotional strength. it is about building endurance,

6. Remember the Bigger Picture

Years from now, when you sign your first audit report, handle your first major client, or build your own practice, this result day will be just a memory.

What will truly matter is:

Your persistence ; Your integrity

Final Thought : When results are ahead, anxiety is natural-but panic is optional.

Walk into result day with courage. If it is your day, embrace it with gratitude. If it is not, embrace the lesson with determination.

Because in the journey of becoming a Chartered Accountant, mindset is not just important it is everything.

Stay calm. Stay focused. Stay resilient.

Your story is bigger than one result.
